

Scalford Hall Hotel

MELTON MOWBRAY

Your Wedding

A Romantic Setting

A warm welcome awaits you and your guests at Scafford Hall Hotel - a stunning Edwardian country house located in the heart of Leicestershire's picturesque countryside.

Built at the turn of the century as a weekend hunting lodge for Major Mann Thompson, a close friend to Edward VIII, it was rumoured Edward conducted much of his courtship with Mrs Simpson here. An ornate fireplace in the hotel is a reminder of those times, with this being a gift from the King. In 1944 the house was purchased by Colonel Colman, founder of Colman's Mustard, who lived here happily with his family until his death in 1969.

Today, we are a haven for couples looking for a truly romantic and undisturbed setting; a place where they can create unforgettable memories from their wedding day.

Our brides and grooms can expect VIP treatment, including a red carpet entrance, an attentive service from our events team and complementary use of the bridal suite on the wedding night.

Taking Your Vows

Whether you are planning a wedding or civil partnership, our wedding co-ordinators can work with you to create something that truly reflects your personality and style.

Friends and family can watch as you take your vows in one of our beautifully appointed and licensed* ceremony rooms, each varying in size and style and providing the backdrop for you to decorate to match your chosen theme or colour scheme.

Celebrating In Style

Picture the scene; flutes raised as guests enjoy Champagne and canapés on our garden terrace or in one of our function rooms. The air filled with laughter. The photographer clicking away. The scene is set for you to create your perfect reception.

When the moment comes to dine, and whether you have decided on a wedding breakfast, an evening buffet or perhaps something a little more bespoke - such as a hog roast or a summer BBQ - you will not be disappointed. Our chef and his team will create mouth watering dishes using local and seasonal produce and drawing on various menu choices to reflect your tastes and the dietary requirements of you and your guests.

With speeches made and the cutting of the cake, attention turns to the celebrations ahead; from the ever popular disco to a live band perhaps. The night is yours and we'll raise a toast to that.
